

Abstract

There are provided a coloration agent for use in ceramic articles which offers an effective reuse of shot waste and which contributes to the reduction of manufacture costs, as well as a color developing clay using the same. The coloration agent contains metal powder separated from the shot waste and uses metal oxide powder contained in the metal powder as a basic raw material. The color developing clay is prepared by admixing the coloration agent with a clay raw material.